

مِدَصَل تاي موي قباتك لي لد

Trauma Journal Guide

قباتك لتاداش

Journaling Guidelines

1. Write when you feel stable — never when overwhelmed
2. Set a time limit (10-20 min) to prevent flooding
3. You don't have to write about the trauma itself
4. Focus on present experience, feelings, and observations
5. There is no "right" way to journal

قمال سل دعاوق

Safety Rules

- STOP if you feel dissociated — ground first, then return
- Never force yourself to write about details you're not ready for
- Always close with a calming ritual (see below)
- Keep your journal in a safe, private place
- Consider sharing only with a trusted therapist

دع مث ألوأ ضراً لاصفن ال اب ترعش اذ فقت
امل أدعتسم تسل لي صافت نع قباتك لي ع كسفن رجت ال

قتسل تا زفحمل اعاونأ

Six Prompt Types

1. Body Check: What am I feeling in my body right now? Where?
2. Emotion Naming: Can I name 3 emotions I'm feeling? Without judgment?
3. Trigger Log: What triggered me today? What helped?
4. Safe Place: Describe my safe place in vivid sensory detail.
5. Strengths: What did I survive today? What am I proud of?
6. Future Self: What would my healed self say to me right now?

قال غل اسوقط

Closing Ritual

After each journaling session, complete these steps to transition out:

1. Put down the pen and take 3 slow breaths
2. Look around and name 3 things you can see (orient)
3. Place both feet on the ground and feel the support
4. Say: "I am safe now. I am in the present."
5. Do something nurturing (tea, walk, music)

If you're in crisis / إذا كنت في أزمة:

Call 911 or your local crisis hotline | اتصل بـ 911 أو خط المساعدة المحلي